

SENATE BATTLE OVER BONUS NEARS END

THAW DECLARED SANE, GOES BACK TO ASYLUM

Philadelphia.—Although he was declared sane and fully capable of managing his affairs by a jury in common pleas court last night, Harry C. Thaw today is still in the Pennsylvania hospital for mental and nervous diseases, where he has been confined for the last seven years.

The jury, after deliberating six hours and fifty-three minutes, voted that Thaw, after seven years in Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases, was now capable of managing his own affairs and would not be a menace to himself or society when released.

It is in June.

For most of the period of their deliberations the jurors stood 11 to 1 in favor of Thaw's release, the last man coming around just before Judge Monaghan ordered the jury into court to report its status.

Thaw was not in the court room when the jury reported, having gone to the Ritz-Carlton hotel with his mother, Mrs. Mary Conley Thaw.

Thaw and his aged mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, received news of the verdict in Mrs. Thaw's suite at the Ritz-Carlton hotel. Thaw said he would not make any definite plans for the future until his case finally was disposed of.

Asst. Clerk Reads Verdict.

The jury filed in at 10:17 o'clock Tuesday night. Judge Monaghan came in at 10:21 and the foreman, Joseph Plunkett, 73, announced the verdict.

His hands shaking and his voice so low that only by straining could the clerk of the court hear him, Mr. Plunkett said in response to the clerk's question:

4 YEAR COURSE IN STATE NORMALS GOES INTO EFFECT

Madison.—Four year courses leading to a degree in all nine state normal schools was the chief action endorsed by the annual convention of the association of normal school teachers in business session last night.

The convention adopted a resolution recommending that the board of normal requests take steps immediately to install the four year course.

Considerable opposition to this action developed on the floor, several members declaring such is not feasible at this time because of the additional staff and new equipment which will be required.

William Kluge, secretary of the normal board, strongly advocated the passage of the resolution. The next legislature probably will be asked to make the necessary appropriations to carry out the program.

J. W. Bridgeman of Eau Claire normal school, was elected president of the association; Miss Laura M. Johnson, Oshkosh, vice president; and Norma M. Kulklin, Superior, secretary-treasurer.

This Ice Box Was Warmly Received

The ice box offered for sale by Mrs. A. B. Brower, 418 Center Avenue, warmed the heart of a certain man who reads the Gazette classified columns regularly. As soon as the man saw the ice box in the "Merchandise" columns of the Gazette, he went down to Mrs. Brower's to see it—and bought it.

If this man hadn't bought it somebody else would have come along later and taken it.

Ground for Public Links Is Promised by Traxler

A municipal golf course in Riverside Park will be included in the plans for developing the city's great playground.

This was the announcement made Tuesday afternoon by City Manager Henry Traxler, who declared himself in heart and soul in favor of the idea. He further said that members of the city council have already indicated their approval.

The number of holes will probably be nine, but this matter is yet to be decided.

Here is the way the matter now stands:

A topographical map of the park is now being rushed to completion by one of the members of the city engineering staff, working evenings and nights. This is expected to be finished within a short time.

As soon as the map is ready, an architect, expert on the laying out of a golf course, will be brought to Janesville. It will be up to him to lay out the sportiest possible course so that all that will be left will be the actual construction.

It will probably cost about $2,000 to work out a temporary course this year, while at the same time work will be progressing that will give a permanent course next year.

Mr. Traxler spent Wednesday afternoon looking over the ground with Joseph Lusk, of the city engineer's department. In the task, Mr. Traxler has the experience of having built a public golf course in Iowa. Therefore his enthusiasm for public golf in Janesville has been well worked out successfully.

A round mass meeting of all men and women, boys and girls, interested in pushing the public golf idea, will be held for Friday night. It will be held at the city hall at 8 o'clock. It is essential that everyone residing in Janesville who is in any way interested in the project shall be there. The session will be held in the municipal court room and every seat should be filled.

Exhibits, plans or now being worked out. They will be presented at this meeting.

KARBERG HOME IS RANSACKED

Thieves, or a thief, entered the home of John C. Karberg, 510 Milton Avenue, while the family was at church last Sunday night. A yellow leather handbag, a child's book with a little change in it, and a lady's pocketbook, also containing a little change, were taken. Drawers in the bedroom and in a dresser were left partly open, but nothing else is missing.

Mrs. Karberg said Wednesday morning that she believed the intruder entered by the back door, using a skeleton key, and locking the door again when going out. A door leading from a bedroom to an upstairs porch was left ajar and the window door to it unlocked, apparently so that the prowler might escape if the family returned unexpectedly.

No report had been made to the police.

DAUGHTERY HITS BACK AT FOES IN SWEEPING DENIAL

Washington, D. C.—Harry M. Daugherty, on the eve of his starting for Ohio where he will take part in the campaign for national delegate, issued a statement last night, in which he showed bitter feeling in regard to the testimony used against him before the Wheeler committee.

He denied that he had ever drunk at his own house or at any other place during his term of office.

"The matter of drinking has been freely referred to," he continues, "I never was a drinking man, and shortly after I was appointed attorney general, it being my official duty to enforce the prohibition laws, I refrained from taking a drink of anything intoxicating and from that day since I have not done so."

His Life Circumstances.

"Nobody ever brought any liquor to my house and I never served liquor in my house. My conduct and my association before and since I have been in Washington will compare favorably with that of any other man who maintains his self respect and conducts himself so as to command the respect of the public. My conduct and my associates have been equal in respectability to those of any public official in Washington, president, cabinet officer or anybody else."

He declared his testimony regarding the Wright-Martin stock as false. He asserted that he had never been at the mysterious green house in K Street and as for the house in H Street, which he temporarily used, scores of men in all walks of life called and there was nothing that the whole world might not see or know about.

Washington.—An effort to set a definite date for consideration by the senate of the child labor amendment failed today on objection by democratic senators.

MYSTERIOUS LETTER HINTED AT IN WHEELER'S EXAM

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington.—A hint of mysterious letter about land permits said to have been written by Senator Booth of the interior department to Senator Wheeler's Montana law firm, was heard today by the special senate committee investigating the senator's indictment on a charge of accepting money for appearing before the department in land matters.

Senator Sterling of South Dakota, a republican member of the committee, said he had been told of such a letter and expected to produce it. He declined to reveal the source of his information or say who prepared a memorandum with the aid of which he was cross questioning J. V. Baughen, a western attorney who said he also had heard of such a letter.

Daugherty, the only witness at today's hearing, testified he had been chief counsel for Gordon Campbell, the Montana oil man indicted with Senator Wheeler, but never heard of the senator's acting for Campbell in land cases. On the contrary, he said, Wheeler had told him he declined specifically to have anything to do with any of Campbell's litigation except in the Montana state courts.

WILL VOTE LATE THIS AFTERNOON ON VETERAN BILL

COPELAND CASH AMENDMENT CENTER OF VETERAN CONFLICT.

LOOKING FOR VETO

Insurance Plan Is Given General Support and Likely to Pass.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington.—Convening two hours earlier than usual, the senate pressed toward a vote today on the soldier bonus bill with each speaker limited to fifteen minutes. The principal controversy centered on the amendment for inclusion in the bill of a cash option provision, offered by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York.

Democrats Back Out

Although drafted by democratic members of the finance committee, the amendment was not submitted by them, leaders said, because they feared its adoption would prevent enactment of a bonus bill. Republican leaders have said they would vote to sustain a presidential veto if the bill carried the cash option proposal but would vote to override a veto if the insurance plan should be disapproved by the executive.

The pending bill, reported to the senate by the finance committee substantially as passed by the house, would allow cash payments to veterans not entitled to more than $50 in adjusted service compensation and 20 year endowment insurance policies of $100,000.

Debate Copeland Amendment

The Copeland amendment called for a cash payment in full to veterans preferring it to the insurance. Such a proposal would require a larger immediate outlay by the government than the straight insurance proposition, and the amendment provided for issuance of $1,500,000 bonds under the second liberty loan act to take care of the payments.

Underwood Opposes

Opening the debate today Sen. Underwood, democrat, Alabama, renewed the attack against the bonus. He advocated a pension law but declared it impossible to compensate the former soldiers for their service.

"You dishonor these protectors of our nation by offering them only dollars," Mr. Underwood said, "or by proposing to give them these insurance policies."

The man who fought on the first line of battle will have to carry this country in the next twenty years. You very cunningly fixed this bonus so that it won't be paid for 20 years and proposed that these men instead of you will have to pay for it.

"You're adding under this legislation an enormous tax to an already heavy burden," The doctors disagree on the merits of the bill. One estimate says it will cost $2,500,000,000. The treasury attorney, Mr. Mc Coy, says it will cost $3,000,000,000 and the treasury is probably right."

DEMAND GROWING FOR BADGER COWS
A. O. Collentine Reports Sale of 3,900 Head Shipped Out of State.

Madison—Wisconsin dairy farmers shipped more than 3,900 head of dairy and breeding cattle during the month of March, according to the monthly report of A. O. Collentine, dairy extension specialist, Wisconsin college of agriculture. The shipments exceed any previous March by 500 head, the specialist said. Illinois and Iowa each took over a fourth of the Wisconsin animals during the month, the report declares.

The eastern trader is pinning his faith on stock from tuberculosis-free areas. Mr. Collentine declared, "The explanation of this is that the finds it difficult to sell except on a 90 to 90-day return guarantee. Record time has been made on shipments of badger cows to the east, and the shipper has availed himself of through freight trains."

Reduced Freight Rates
"The Northern Railway has put into effect for 90 days, beginning April 15, reduced rates on dairy cattle shipped from terminal points in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and Wisconsin to Wisconsin. This is a very important move, as it is experiencing some difficulty in dealing with the western trade. Usually the buyer from the range country wants too many cows for the money he has allotted to him for such purchases. But most western ranchers are now using a Wisconsin cow as their 'family cow' and it looks as though they would not be so particular about the 'consistency' at early sales found little competitive bidding for their offerings. The buyer is no doubt having his mind, but quickly, and he has found ready sale and at some where near prices commensurate with value. Many purchased breeders are off the market on account of being overstocked. Others are 'pulling' their cows and selling the produce, while the market for breed stock is slow. Buyers from Idaho and Utah have taken an active interest in the breed stock recently a load was shipped to each state. Buyers of bulls for bull calves in New Mexico purchased several with yearly records and of good type."

Canada Wants Cattle
Mr. Collentine declared it is expected large shipments of Wisconsin cattle will be made into western Canada as soon as the embargo on all cattle into the Dominion from the United States is removed. The embargo was declared because of the foot and mouth disease outbreak in California. It was said.

SEEK EXTENSION FOR WOMEN WORKING IN CONDENSERIES
Madison—The Industrial Commission has ordered a hearing in Madison on April 25 to consider application of Wisconsin condenseries for permission to employ women workers in a 10-hour day and 56 hours a week. The condenseries claim they cannot employ women workers unless a 10-hour daily schedule is permitted. This legislative reduced hours that women may be employed in manufacturing to nine hours a day or 56 hours a week.

Sgo and I. C. Lines to Connect Madison—Survey work looking toward construction of a railroad line between Madison and Portage under direction of the Wisconsin and Southern railroad company, is under way, according to information obtained from the company. The Madison-Portage project will involve construction of approximately 10 miles of track, according to company officials. The line would give the Illinois Central a connection with the northern part of the state.

The Wisconsin and Southern railroad company has been granted by the secretary of state, William Smith, Chicago, is president of the road.

GEORGIA DEMOCRATS IN CONVENTION
Atlanta—Georgia democrats are in session here today to name their delegates to the national convention and instruct it to vote for the nomination of William G. McAdoo for president. In the recent primaries over Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama, assured him the delegation.

One of the principal questions to be decided by the gathering is whether women shall be allowed equal representation on the delegation. That has been contested for virtually is assured, according to pre-convention forecasts. Another proposal is that 26 delegates be chosen, instead of the 24 who were each, as was done at the last two national gatherings.

The convention also will select 11 presidential electors, and will appoint a national committee. The most held for a score of years by Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, and which is expected to be contested for by Major John S. Cohen, publisher of the Atlanta Journal.

MAGNUS JOHNSON FACING TROUBLE FOR RE-ELECTION
Dealers Learn What Fireworks They May Handle

Minneapolis—Senator Magnus Johnson may have serious opposition in his own party at the coming primary election. Groups of Farmer-Johnson leaders, not friendly to the Senator, have been in conference and are urging Dr. L. A. Fritsch of New Ulm to file for the senate.

Mr. Johnson's friends have assumed that he would have clear sailing for re-election. Elements in the party, however, that never have been satisfied with "Magnus," dropped hints months ago that he would have a fight on his hands.

The opposition points out that in the special election campaign last year Senator Johnson gave out a statement saying he was a candidate for the short term only. He was elected with the understanding that he was going in "on trial," subject to the will of the party organization. That never has been expressed. No endorsements were voted at the various meetings last month. He is held, Senator Johnson has no more claim to support of the organization than any one else.

There have been muttering of criticism against Senator Johnson's record among his own party men. He has done nothing and said nothing of any value to the cause, but has obtained publicity chiefly through "stunts" like the tailfin contest and the wood sawing contest. Of late his attitude on the McNary-Haugen bill has brought adverse comment among many of his former constituents.

Dr. Fritsch ran second in the special primary election last year. He declined this year to file for governor, but has been strongly urged to run for congress in the second district.

Another report is that a Communist candidate will be entered in the Farmer-Labor primaries. Under the Communist party organization, the candidate is supposed to enter their own candidates for all important places on the Minnesota Farmer-Labor ticket.

Alleged Postal Crook Will Face U. S. Judge in May
The arrest of Hayes Van Gorder, alleged to be one of the cleverest postal crooks in the country, is announced by the U. S. attorney in Madison. Van Gorder was arrested in January, 1923, in connection with a long list of charges including fraud and robbery.

Information furnished by Stanley Ryan, assistant U. S. attorney, shows that Van Gorder was sentenced to five years in a federal penitentiary for violating the mail laws. Several violations in the western Wisconsin district are also charged against him.

The particular graft in said to have been to represent himself to be a postoffice inspector. Located in one city, he would write or telegraph to the postmaster in another city and order blank money order forms. When it is alleged, he forged the Minnesota element came in 1913 and Van Gorder was released from the federal prison in January. Some time afterwards Van Gorder got into trouble again for a new offense in Iowa and is stated to have secured a parole for a serious charge in Missouri. He will answer to both the Iowa and Wisconsin federal charges in Superior during the May term of court.

Fire Deluge Set Placed on Truck
After having been attached to a hose-drawn fire wagon for many years and operated at several of the hottest fires in the city's history, the deluge set of the fire department has been transferred to the Mitchell emergency truck, located at No. 1 house. This will enable Chief C. J. Murphy to move the wagon to some other house where there is more storage space.

The deluge set consists of a long nozzle and three hose connections mounted on an iron base and firmly attached to the truck so it can be controlled by one man. The nozzle can be equipped with tips to throw a stream ranging from one and one-quarter inches to one and three-quarter inches, and an immense volume of water can be pumped through it.

The set is used to advantage on big blazes where it is difficult, on account of the heat, to get at the heart of a fire with an ordinary stream. With these hose connections, a high pressure is secured and as a result a large stream can be thrown.

CLINTON ASKS PUBLIC HELP IN SAVING WOODS
Large Per Cent of Forest Fires Laid at Door of Careless Persons.

Madison—Cooperation between state and federal government agencies in stamping out destructive forest fires in Wisconsin and other states was urged in a statement here today by C. A. Hoard, Duluth, district federal fire inspector. Hoard's statement was issued in connection with the Forest Protection Week activities.

"The federal government is vitally interested in fire protection in Wisconsin," Hoard declared. "Wisconsin is not a contributor through the Weeks law which authorized cooperation between the government and state in forest protection. The federal government is of great importance as a forest producing region because of their agricultural and industrial development. Great quantities of forest materials, formate any highly developed industrial system and the federal forest service hopes for a forward-looking forest restoration program in this section."

"There is no more reason for the forest fire than there is for the average grass burning accident. All that is needed is a little thought and care on the part of the public. Preventing forest fires in the state, if they used precaution while working in or passing through or along forests. It is conservatively estimated that fifty-five per cent of all fires are caused by man himself."

FRENCH INFANTRY ARMED WITH NEW TYPE OF RIFLE
Paris—The infantry was recently approved a new type of machine rifle for the French army. It was designed by a French artillery officer and is said to be very simple to operate, a recent development with average intelligence being supposed to master it within a few weeks.

This proved to be the deciding factor in the choice of the infantry from among the numerous types submitted, owing to the shorter term of military service and ever increasing amount of mater placed before the soldiers for instruction.

The type still in use is the one adopted in 1915, which appeared on the battlefield in the summer of the first time in 1916, when it caused much surprise among the enemy.

MAGNUS JOHNSON FACING TROUBLE FOR RE-ELECTION
Dealers Learn What Fireworks They May Handle

Minneapolis—Senator Magnus Johnson may have serious opposition in his own party at the coming primary election. Groups of Farmer-Johnson leaders, not friendly to the Senator, have been in conference and are urging Dr. L. A. Fritsch of New Ulm to file for the senate.

Mr. Johnson's friends have assumed that he would have clear sailing for re-election. Elements in the party, however, that never have been satisfied with "Magnus," dropped hints months ago that he would have a fight on his hands.

The opposition points out that in the special election campaign last year Senator Johnson gave out a statement saying he was a candidate for the short term only. He was elected with the understanding that he was going in "on trial," subject to the will of the party organization. That never has been expressed. No endorsements were voted at the various meetings last month. He is held, Senator Johnson has no more claim to support of the organization than any one else.

There have been muttering of criticism against Senator Johnson's record among his own party men. He has done nothing and said nothing of any value to the cause, but has obtained publicity chiefly through "stunts" like the tailfin contest and the wood sawing contest. Of late his attitude on the McNary-Haugen bill has brought adverse comment among many of his former constituents.

Dr. Fritsch ran second in the special primary election last year. He declined this year to file for governor, but has been strongly urged to run for congress in the second district.

Another report is that a Communist candidate will be entered in the Farmer-Labor primaries. Under the Communist party organization, the candidate is supposed to enter their own candidates for all important places on the Minnesota Farmer-Labor ticket.

Alleged Postal Crook Will Face U. S. Judge in May
The arrest of Hayes Van Gorder, alleged to be one of the cleverest postal crooks in the country, is announced by the U. S. attorney in Madison. Van Gorder was arrested in January, 1923, in connection with a long list of charges including fraud and robbery.

Information furnished by Stanley Ryan, assistant U. S. attorney, shows that Van Gorder was sentenced to five years in a federal penitentiary for violating the mail laws. Several violations in the western Wisconsin district are also charged against him.

The particular graft in said to have been to represent himself to be a postoffice inspector. Located in one city, he would write or telegraph to the postmaster in another city and order blank money order forms. When it is alleged, he forged the Minnesota element came in 1913 and Van Gorder was released from the federal prison in January. Some time afterwards Van Gorder got into trouble again for a new offense in Iowa and is stated to have secured a parole for a serious charge in Missouri. He will answer to both the Iowa and Wisconsin federal charges in Superior during the May term of court.

After having been attached to a hose-drawn fire wagon for many years and operated at several of the hottest fires in the city's history, the deluge set of the fire department has been transferred to the Mitchell emergency truck, located at No. 1 house. This will enable Chief C. J. Murphy to move the wagon to some other house where there is more storage space.

The deluge set consists of a long nozzle and three hose connections mounted on an iron base and firmly attached to the truck so it can be controlled by one man. The nozzle can be equipped with tips to throw a stream ranging from one and one-quarter inches to one and three-quarter inches, and an immense volume of water can be pumped through it.

The set is used to advantage on big blazes where it is difficult, on account of the heat, to get at the heart of a fire with an ordinary stream. With these hose connections, a high pressure is secured and as a result a large stream can be thrown.

Large Per Cent of Forest Fires Laid at Door of Careless Persons.

Madison—Cooperation between state and federal government agencies in stamping out destructive forest fires in Wisconsin and other states was urged in a statement here today by C. A. Hoard, Duluth, district federal fire inspector. Hoard's statement was issued in connection with the Forest Protection Week activities.

"The federal government is vitally interested in fire protection in Wisconsin," Hoard declared. "Wisconsin is not a contributor through the Weeks law which authorized cooperation between the government and state in forest protection. The federal government is of great importance as a forest producing region because of their agricultural and industrial development. Great quantities of forest materials, formate any highly developed industrial system and the federal forest service hopes for a forward-looking forest restoration program in this section."

"There is no more reason for the forest fire than there is for the average grass burning accident. All that is needed is a little thought and care on the part of the public. Preventing forest fires in the state, if they used precaution while working in or passing through or along forests. It is conservatively estimated that fifty-five per cent of all fires are caused by man himself."

"Impulses."
Dr. Irving Maurer, president of Beloit college, has charged us as being a too impulsive people, and that we "go off half cocked" and regret it afterward. He applied this to the action in Congress over the Japanese situation, taking for granted that the letter of Ambassador Hanihara had precipitated the whole question into the senate and therefore was a result born out of a sudden impulse.

The facts hardly bear out this assumption.
True, there are a few senators perhaps, who were somewhat fortified in a pre-determination to vote for exclusion by this foolish and impulsive letter of the ambassador's. But the Japanese question is nothing new. It is many years old and has been argued and written about for a half century, first in the attitude of America in reference to Orientalism in general, the Chinese specifically as related to exclusion, and later in direct connection with the Japanese. We have threshed out the biological side, the miscegenation is looked upon as an impossibility and unthinkable.

We have had a bitter lesson and full punishment for enslaving people of another race and miscegenation has borne its Dead Sea fruit in the tabooed but nevertheless accomplished intermarriage of negro and white. Those people were here and we have not sent them away. We gave them the ballot, a questionable political expedient, and the lesson has been severe. We do not intend to walk into another racial trap with our eyes opened.

The Japanese question has been debated in Congress for months. It is agreed that the Caucasian and Mongolian races are non-assimilable, that they represent two differing civilizations and that they never could dwell together in close neighborly friendliness and unity, mixing children and families and becoming one hybrid race in the end. We may be sorry that the Japanese is a super-sensitive person but we have so much knowledge of him in our own territory of Hawaii that he has become an unpleasant fact and we must perforce hurt his exposed feelings.

A part of the program of the Japanese government is to have racial equality freely admitted by other nations. That question is as old as races themselves. It is not settled by impulse nor is it the sudden outcropping of a momentary peeve.
It is a part of the heretofore decided and fixed policy of the United States. The constitution of the United States commits us to the doctrine of expatriation. Japan does not admit that its people ever lose their allegiance to Japan. Instead of being super sensitive, Japan should throw away some of her ancient traditions and when on a basis with the United States she may have some better fate to make demands.

Few questions have been debated more than the one of the right and justice of exclusion and regulation in reference to immigration. What congress has done has been deliberate, certainly not the result of a sudden impulse. Of all nations the United States has no traditional enemies and wants none.

In the language of President Roosevelt in a letter to his Harvard schoolmate, Baron Kentaro Kato, Japanese statesman, as published in "Mysterious Japan," we are "facing conditions not as I would like them to be but as they are."

As Kathleen Norris, a Californian, said, three years ago, "but with the definite air of colonization, of transplantation without either severance from the old world or allegiance to the new, Japan has crept in. Buddhist temples are being erected up and down the state and the language of Japan is being taught religiously on American soil."

That was in 1921; this is 1924 when we have at last awakened, deliberately and not impulsively, to the fact.

Humanity is buying several millions of dollars worth of airplanes but is all up in the air when we ask her to pay the 36 million she owes us.

George Washington once went to the senate to talk over with that body a treaty with the southern Indians, and taking the chair, presented the matter for consideration but the senate postponed action. Washington, according to John Quincy Adams in his Memoirs, remarked that "he would be damned if he ever went there again." So if a president and a senate do not get along now there is precedent as old as the first senate and the first president.

Even a worm will turn. Look at William Randolph Hearst.

May we not suggest a third party ticket headed by Gaston B. Manna for president and Rosie Stinson as vice president, with Al Jennings as

LOOKING UP FAMILY TREES

By FREDERICK J. HANSEN.

Washington.—One of the early signs of spring in the city of Washington is an unusual display of interest in family trees. Genealogists, professional and amateur, haunt the Library of Congress all the year round, but about this time the government library has a steady stream of enthusiasts demanding the history of this family and that. Family trees put out new branches and grow amazingly.

The reason is that spring is the traditional time in which to see the national capital and in consequence the city is thronged with tourists and delegates to all sorts of conventions. Many of these visitors are interested in the story of their ancestry, and they seize the opportunity of consulting the capital's libraries and government records.

The genealogical season reaches its height in April, when the Daughters of the American Revolution hold their annual convention. Members of this society trace their lineage back to some ancestor who aided in establishing American independence. The organization has about 140,000 members, which means that at least 140,000 American women have successfully traced their ancestry back to the Revolutionary days. There is no telling how many more women have tried to trace the record and found it incomplete. Some 10,000 new members were added to the society's rolls last year, and an equal number this year, during the convention just held.

The genealogical collection of the Library of Congress is regarded as one of the most extensive in the United States. As a result it is a genealogist's paradise—when the desired books are not in use. Professional genealogists may be seen at work in the reading room from morning till night. One expert comes from Salt Lake City every year to spend a month conducting research in Washington.

There are not many fine genealogical collections in this country. Those in libraries in Chicago, New York, Richmond, Boston and Harvard are probably the best known, together with the U. S. N. Library and the government's collection in this city.

The government has about 8,900 volumes of English and American genealogies. It is interesting to note that there are more volumes about the Smith's than about any other name, and next in number come the histories of the White and Clark families.

These books, with their facts about births, deaths, and marriages, characteristics and careers, are popular.

Some amateur searchers come to the library with enthusiastic plans for proving relationship with a famous king or a medieval conqueror. One Maryland congressman spent some time at the library struggling with the problem of tracing his line back to King Solomon and thence on back to Adam. Available records proved inadequate for this interesting piece of research. The congressman soon ran up against some persistently missing links in his ancestral chain.

Other ambitious researchers have had better luck. One expert who traced a line back to the fifth century used the government reference books to settle many important points.
The difficulty of tracing a line of ancestry can scarcely be appreciated by anyone who has not attempted the task. Historic records are far from complete and family histories are not always conveniently compiled in bound volumes and waiting on library shelves. Genealogists write to family connections for information, and they consult old bibles, copies of land grants, tombstone inscriptions, county tax records, marriage registers, contracts, wills, diplomas, military records and pension lists.

Some states and towns and some families have kept their records much more accurately and completely than others. Places have destroyed archives that can never be replaced. Miscellaneous books have changed dates on old colonial tombstones. Romantic chroniclers have tampered with fact in recording family exploits. It is only in the past few decades that genealogy has begun to be restricted to the rules of an exact science.
The genealogist of today finds it necessary to distinguish carefully between reliable and questionable sources and to verify facts as he goes.

How complicated the matter of tracing genealogy may become if it is pursued far enough by an inquisitive searcher is revealed by the fact that the mathematical facts alone—each individual has two parents, four grandparents, eight great-grandparents, and so on in progression. By the time the tenth generation of ancestors is reached the complete collection of direct forebears numbers 2,446. Go back about 40 generations and the number would be in excess of the world's population. Intermarriage and multiple relationships explain the contradictory situation.

According to Miss L. S. Kimball, a genealogist, "the entire English speaking population of the world consists of inbred descendants of Charlemagne, the first king of the Franks, who died in 1121 and who was descended from Charlemagne through six separate strains."

If the meaning of this statement is grasped it is not surprising to learn that among the persons whose lineage can be traced back to Charlemagne are George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, John D. Rockefeller, Patrick Henry, and Aaron Burr.

To clarify descent from Charlemagne is an im-piling thought, but strictly speaking it doesn't mean much to the modern American. According to Galton's hereditary genius, each parent contributes one-fourth of an individual's hereditary to this added the contribution of each grandparent, which amounts to about one-sixteenth, and so on.
The individual is a combination of traits bestowed upon him by his forefathers, but as they become remote the contribution of each becomes infinitesimally small. Some one has figured that an individual's heritage from any Mayflower passenger today amounts to one part in 65,536.

To prove kinship with the hero Charlemagne, therefore, may seem merely a futile and egotistic pursuit to the literal minded. But genealogy has important uses both practical and idealistic.
On the practical side, expert genealogical research builds up records of great value. The court's decision regarding many a contested will depends on family records, which may or may not be complete. Heirs to property often find it impossible to prove their claims because of the lack of accessible records.

The individual's benefit from knowing the facts of his heritage is most often mental. History becomes more personal and more vital to him when he knows the part his forefathers played in his country's history. There is no doubt also that pride in a sturdy family tree stimulates many a person to be a credit to his ancestors and to his descendants.

The decision of the manager of the Polites not to use the billboards and advertise only in newspapers hereafter, will result in a less number of auto accidents. Many a driver has been ditched while studying art on the billboards.

New York is reading fewer books. They have have no time between getting the hair bobbed and reading about bobbed-hair bandits.

All of the time of the oil investigation, we were under the impression that all the money in the country was either in the U. S. Treasury or that Henry Ford had it.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

Laugh and take the jest of life, be a man with a grin.
Give a blow and take a blow and rise to fight again,
But take a tip from one who knows and have it in your mind.
Yes, laugh clearly in your head,
Jangle it just above your bed,
Say it when your prayers are said:
"You needn't be a sissy to be good."

Sing and dance and have your fun, but keep this truth in mind:
All the joy that is worth while is of the honest kind.
Get out there with rugged men, do what others do,
Brave the wind and face the rain,
Bend your muscles to the strain,
Have red blood in every vein,
But stay clean and true.

Never shrink from any task, hear what you must hear,
Take your share of whatever it be, but keep your conscience clear:
Build your manhood firm and strong, stand where men have stood.

Fight whenever you must fight,
Work with will and all your might—
But remember, day and night,
"You needn't be a sissy to be good."

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, APRIL 24, 1924.

According to astrology, this is not an important day in planetary direction, all the signs being of doubtful omen.
It is a quiet time along beaten paths and to make no experiments of any sort.
The springtime from now on is to be a period when the public mind will be disturbed by business rumors that have little foundation, the seers declare, for there are planetary influences that point toward deception and poisoning.

Early in the morning Mercury is adverse and the influences are believed to be unfavorable to the settlement of accounts or to any important transaction.
Werner are warned that disappointment will attend many of their political ambitions.
The death of a man high in the government service is forecast by astrologers.

The death of a man high in the government

Something of the kind has been suggested by the mediaeval forecast at large since about the time of the flood, for nearly all the famous old

Dr. James T. Case, whose studies of the intestinal functions by means of X-rays are celebrated, finds that "practically all laxatives which are irritant in their action are seen to increase the spasticity which is so common in cases of constipation." So pronounced is this spasmic state which is produced in the colon by a spastic that Dr. Case suggests: "Most constipated patients need antispasmodics, not irritants."

Something of the kind has been

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

Medicine worse than disease.

All of the well known laxatives are irritant. Dr. L. A. Allen, an authority on infant feeding and diseases of children, found that even castor oil, which is considered by the laity almost soothing in effect, irritates the intestine, the intestine suddenly to cause red blood corpuscles to appear in the defecata.

Physicians have long recognized a special type of constipation as spastic, but is characterized by it is not entirely due to a spasmic state of the large intestine. Such constipation is often associated with a peculiar form of constipation of the large intestine known as mucous colitis from the excessive amount of mucus accreted and discharged from the inflamed bowel. In these cases of spastic constipation it is generally recommended that physics are likely to aggravate the spasm and so to make matters all the worse. Now I tell you right here that I don't know anything more about mucous colitis and if that is what you think all you, tell your neighbor, not me.

For quite a spell I have been mulling over in my mind a purely speculative way and without any clear scientific data to base my con-jectures on, the notion that maybe in the general run of cases of constipation than has been acknowledged by the medical profession ordinarily.
Some such thought has prompted me to write a few lines on the subject of evil of depending on physics or enemas to "regulate" the bowels. I have reason to think that my premonitions of this constipation habit have done considerable good—and any rate, I have helped a few victims of the habit to see the error of their way and get back on the health trail again so far as this one aspect of the ways of health is concerned.

PRESIDENT SEES TIME HAS COME TO AID EUROPE

ADDRESS AT NEW YORK INTERPRETED AS CALL FOR CHANGE FOR GERMAN LOAN Helping Europe Economically Means Strengthening America.

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Copyright, 1924, by the Janesville Gazette. Special Correspondence to the Janesville Gazette.

Mr. Coolidge, president of the United States, has undertaken to convert the public opinion of the United States to an economic rather than a political relationship with Europe.

While Mr. Coolidge holds the office, he is not a politician, but a statesman. He is not a politician, but a statesman. He is not a politician, but a statesman.

Mr. Coolidge's address carries with it an appeal of a transcendent importance. It means the turning point in the policy of isolationism.

It is altogether probable that some of it can be used more to our financial advantage in Europe than it can in the United States.

The foregoing passage is not a new philosophy, but it represents the cautious beginning of a new era in domestic policy.

The speech of Mr. Coolidge is an attack on those who have accused the administration of neglecting Europe.
